The program provides genetic testing and counseling to help individuals determine their family history and cancer risk, a prevention plan, and treatment if necessary. The clinic offers full counseling services for all types of cancers, as well as access to clinical trials. For cancer patients, certified counselors serve as part of a multidisciplinary cancer care team.

Physicians in cancer genetics work together to provide comprehensive diagnosis and treatment of familial cancer syndromes and cancer risk assessment based on genetic background.

Services include:

- Review and consultation by a team of Board-certified clinical geneticists, genetic counselors, and cancer specialists

- Diagnosis of genetic conditions and cancer risk assessment

- Tailored cancer screening recommendations.

- Comprehensive discussion of preventive measures including chemoprevention and prophylactic surgery.

- Information for other family members.

- Discussion and facilitation of genetic testing

- Information about appropriate research programs and/or clinical trials

- Appropriate referral to other specialists necessary for comprehensive and tailored care
